MOTHERS DAY.

Tomorrow we honor our mothers or their blessed memory, and the following beautiful tribute to Mother from the pen of Miss Kathleen Randle is given as appropriate to the occasion:To thy spirit bereft of its peace And thy body tormented with pain; Though the one should forever increaseAnd the other scarce known again, Still is something of happiness left For all save the motherless child.
Ah, if not of thy mother bereft, Then the Angel of Mercy hath smiled.

When sorrow and sickness and pain

A. M. WALDROP & CO., Bryan's Big Clothing StoreOvertake thee, thy mate may be-true, Though thy wealth and thy greatness should wane
Of friends there may linger a few, But when shame sets its hand on thy brow
And misfortune and crime are thy fate, Tis the mother will teach the world how She can love thee as much as they hate.Though the pestilence be at thy bed And the cell of the felon thy doom, Through the day she will pillow thy head,
And with tenderness banish thy gloom.
With the stars she will watch through the night And burden her thoughts with thy woes, Thus pondering thy cure and thy flight,
She will sacrifice health and repose.Though barred by society's laws, Though others should curse thee and fly, Though thy friends should abandon thy cause,
One remains to defend and defy.
Thy mother will think thee belied, Will cling to thine honor and truth, Though others despise and deride, Her faith wears the freshness of youth.The torrents from mountainous steeps
That resistlessly rush from above, The surge of the fathomless deeps Type but feebly the strength of her love.
For dried shall be earth's deepest river;
The waves of the sea rest in time, But her love lives forever and ever Unchanging, immortal, sublime.As the earthquake to the cradle's soft motion,
As the chase to the pageant of war,
As a breath to the storms of the ocean,
Or the light of a sun to a star Is the tide of a mother's affection, When measured by all other ties, Its floods, resistless, in every direction,
And though ebbing with death, never dies.

SWAT THE FLY.

The Commerce Journal, edited by Sterling P. Hart, formerly of Bryan, has recently issued a "Swat the Fly" special edition which was not only unique, but a splendid piece of journalism. It was a complete exposition of the fly problem and contained many other valuable suggestions for preserving and conserving the public health. The edition should prove to be of inestimable value to Commerce and all that section of the state. The following fly don'ts were clipped from the paper and should be preserved by every household to whose attention they may come:"Don't allow flies in your house.
"Don't permit them near your food, especially milk."Don't buy foodstuffs where flies are tolerated."Don't have feeding places where flies can load themselves with ejections from typhoid or dysenteric patients."Don't allow your fruits and confections to be exposed to the swarms of flies."Don't let the flies crawl over the baby's mouth and swarm upon the nipple of its nursing bottle."Clean up your premises inside and out. Then see that the community does the same."Strike at the root of the evil. The housefly breeds in horse manure, kitchen offal and the like. Dispose of these materials in such a way that the housefly cannot propagate."The school board is to be commended for its action in ordering additional equipment for the manual training department, and laboratory equipment to be installed by the opening of next session. This is indeed a forward step and is in line with the progressive ideas of Superintendent Lawson.
The re-election of the old teaching force is also commendable as well as gratifying to the citizens and patrons.Washington stands pat on the Mexican situation and more troops will be furnished if needed, but none will be withdrawn.Brazos County, that is a large part of it, is fairly alive with good roads making outfits and the spirit of enterprise is in the air. Times will be lively in old Brazos for several months.The name of Roger Sullivan has been suggested as President Wilson's running mate, and the suggestion was like the explosion of a bomb. Verily this year of politics makes our nerves tingle.Work seems to be at a standstill in the installation of lights in the Civic League Park. It's a shame brethren beloved that this work should stop because of lack of funds. Let's all rally to the support of these progressive ladies and help them to complete this most commendable task which they have undertaken.An efficient health officer is a good community investment?

SPOKE ON INFALLIBILITY.

The infallibility of the Pope Discussed at Catholic Mission.The lecture, "Infallibility," by Father Ross at St. Joseph's Church last night made a profound impression on the congregation in attendance.
Father Ross, in the course of his lecture, explained fully the infallibility of the pope and the only course for the pope to follow to be infallible is to go according to the scripture.
Catholics do not believe that the pope cannot commit sin, because the present pope goes to confession every week. The pope cannot impose upon the Catholics new dogmas and beliefs and can speak infallibly only in official actions. The question box contained a number of questions and a good many were left over to be answered tonight. The lecture "Indifferentism" tonight and "The Church Universal" tomorrow night will close the mission. All non-Catholics are urged to attend and to use the question box as often as they wish. Plenty of seats and courteous ushers are at your disposal; so come out and hear Father Ross give his last two lectures.Prof. J. E. Batson and C. H. B.
